Based in Sparkford, near Yeovil in Somerset in South West England, Haynes is the world's largest producer of car repair manuals. The company produces over 100 million manuals every year. The firm specializes in car repair manuals for car models from most manufacturers and is most famous for its work on classic and vintage cars such as Morris Minor and Mini Cooper. Haynes Publishing Group has its origins in the 1980s when Peter Gotts, a British mechanic, began to write manuals for his fellow mechanics. Haynes Manuals (the company) was officially created in 1988 to publish Peter Gotts' work. It is named after Haynes Hill in Sparkford where the original garage that Peter owned was located. The company's first manual was the Morris Minor service manual which sold over 250,000 copies. Indeed, Haynes Manuals (the company) has become one of the world's leading publishers of car manuals for car owners and do-it-yourselfers which can be found all over Europe and Australasia although they are not yet available in North America. Peter Gotts continued to run Haynes until 1998 when he sold it to ICD, a UK-based software company famous for developing the PC/AT BIOS. Under ICD's ownership, Haynes was quickly transformed from a cottage industry into a global company employing over 250 people worldwide. In August 2010, Haynes was acquired by Summit in what was described in the media as the "most dramatic deal of its type in recent times." Haynes has offices in ten locations globally including Argentina, Australia, China, France, Germany and the USA. The firm employs more than 650 staff across its various locations. Haynes produces full-colour manuals on maintenance and repair for thousands of classic car models. Haynes also produces a comprehensive line of manuals and workshop and repair manuals for motorbikes (Haynes Motorcycle Manuals). Haynes offers mobile apps for both iPhone/iPad and Android mobile devices. It is the motor industry's first manufacturer-branded application available from Apple's App Store and the Google Play store. The app gives users access to Haynes' full product range in a format previously unavailable to Haynes' customers. Users can search by vehicle name, year, make or model to find products which cover almost every car, bike or van manufactured in the past 50 years.
