party of four. If you have more players, feel free to adjust the difficulty up one level for each additional player or simply tune the monsters to your needs. This dungeon contains many original enemies, a unique puzzle, and an environment that is meant to bring a sense of terror and anxiety on your players. I consider this to be the Horror-themed adventure of the module so feel free to add some creepy music and extra details along the way to bring the area to life (or death).

Final Stand of Sureves Epan's

Beyond the personal laboratory is Sureves's personal quarters and it here where the head alchemist waits. In his chambers, he was working on a smaller alchemical golem, one roughly the size of a human. When the effects of the potion took hold, he became fused with his own creation and when the party enters the room they see the result of this staring back at them. It is an entity half man and half machine.

Most of the right half of his body was replaced by metal and wiring, all the way up to his skull. The left half remains relatively untouched except for a few wires that seem to dig in through his skin. Blood is flowing through what would normally be a clear glass tube on one side and through another tube is a light blue liquid that flows at a similar rate.
